“We want to give special thanks to our title sponsor, Whataburger, and all our supporters throughout the Valley who generously contribute to the mission of Driscoll Children’s Hospital in providing the highest level of specialized pediatric healthcare services to the children of South Texas,” said Martha St. Romain, vice president of Development at Driscoll Children’s Hospital. “Generous community support plays a vital role in assisting Driscoll to continue to grow and expand its many services offered right here in the McAllen area.”

One-hundred percent of the donations from Fiesta de los Niños will fund Driscoll's Medical Plaza – McAllen, where the new Driscoll Children's Quick Care has been serving children and their parents since it opened in February 2009.

Driscoll Children's Medical Plaza has been welcoming the people of McAllen and the surrounding communities since 2002. The doctors, nurses and staff are dedicated to the children of the Rio Grande Valley and continue to make their health Driscoll's number one priority.

“Whataburger and their founders, the Dobson family, have supported the Corpus Christi Fiesta de los Niños since it began more than 15 years ago,” said Bobby Pemelton, Whataburger director of operations. “It has been a tremendous success, and we're delighted to help with this event, which will support the growth of highly specialized pediatric healthcare services available to children in the Rio Grande Valley.”
